PALMER WINS.

The General Elected United States Senator From Illinois

The Three Alliance Men At Last Brought Into Line. For Him.

But One Ballot Needed to End The Long Struggle at Springfield.

Cockrell and Moore's Manifesto Explaining Why They Dropped Streeter.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 11.—(Special)—It took but one ballot to-day to end the senatorial struggle. On that ballot Moore and Cockrell, the alliance members transferred their vote to Palmer and the general was formally named as United States senator from Illinois.

The greatest excitement followed the announcement of the vote. Democrats hugged one another, howled and jumped in the air with all the enthusiasm of school boys.

To-day's action was the result of the action taken by Cockrell and Moore Tuesday evening in formally renouncing Mr. Streeter and declaring their intention of voting for Gen. Palmer to-day. At a conference last night nearly the whole afternoon Cockrell and Moore prepared the following public address, which they have submitted for publication:

"To the Farmers' Mutual Benefit association of the state of Illinois: We, your representatives, at the beginning of the session of the general assembly of Illinois, in accordance with the desire of our constituents and of our order throughout the state, resolved to make an honest, manly and earnest effort to elect to the United States senate a man who would truly represent the principles and declarations of the great independent industrial movement which has grown up in the land in the last few years. In accordance with this policy we considered the names of several of the men who stand high in the independent organizations and finally selected A. J. Streeter as the man who, as we thought, more fully represented the independent movement than any other man.

"We have stood here eight weeks making an earnest effort to elect the man of our choice to the United States senate. We have refused to make any concessions of principles to either of the old political parties. We had a hope, not unreasonable, but natural, that any help from either of the old parties would come from the republican party, which, like ourselves, was in the minority in this general assembly and in the state of Illinois. We have in view of this from time to time met with the representatives of the republican party and afforded them every opportunity of electing to the United States senate a true representative of our principles. In order to enable them to act with us in the matter we have, in acquiescence to their request, adjourned whenever an adjournment was desired by them, refusing to vote whenever they desired us not to vote, in the hope that ultimately they would see fit to assist us in electing an untrammelled representative of the independent movement to the United States senate.

"We hoped that our republican friends would view this in the light, perhaps not of a republican victory, but of a means of enabling them by the election of an independent to place their political enemies at a disadvantage in the coming contest throughout the state and in the city of Chicago. Although defeated at the polls by the people the republicans had an opportunity, by throwing their strength to the independent representative, of gratifying their ambition to defeat the democratic party at this time and thereby place them at a disadvantage throughout the state and nation. Professing to desire to acquiesce in the election of an independent they have negotiated with us and manifested an inclination to support Mr. Streeter; but, instead of acting upon this hypothesis, they have adjourned from time to time and prolonged the contest, and finally, ignoring our declaration that the United States senator must be an independent, they have, little by little, sought and obtained from our nominee such concessions and promises as they carried out, entirely unfit him from conscientiously representing the principles of the independent movement. We are disappointed and determined that it is due to our constituents and to the taxpayers of the state that this senatorial fight should be brought to a close.

"Finding it absolutely impossible to elect an independent, a man who can represent untrammelled and unshackled the views of our organization, we have concluded that our best duty is the selection as near as possible of a man who, while not representing the principles of our organization in full, is in sympathy with many of our demands and concedes the needs of redress in the legislation which has been permitted to grow up under the rule of corporations and monopolies. We have conceded that the voice of the people of the state at large should be respected in the choice of a United States senator, and that voice so far as it has been expressed in the late election, has unquestionably been expressed in behalf of Gen. John M. Palmer and the principle of electing a United States senator by the direct vote of the people—a principle which our organizations fully and earnestly endorse. By a plurality of 30,300 voters, electors of Illinois have shown the preference for this candidate, John M. Palmer.

"Boasting himself that we cannot elect a man who would fully represent our people, we have called on Mr. Palmer in the interest of our people to ascertain what assurances and hopes he would give us in regard to his future official action affecting such legislation as our people demand. This interview, we must say, was satisfactory to our people, and our expectations, and Gen. Palmer has earned our admiration in his many way of conducting his fight this winter. In refusing to allow any corrupt influence to be used in his behalf to secure his election, he has said all the time that he did not intend or want to go to the United States senate in that way, even telling us that he did not propose to go to hell by way of the United States senate. While he does not fully represent us, he has forced us to believe that he is an honest man.

"While this has been a prolonged contest we feel that the effect has been good; that it has forced the politicians to admit that there is something wrong. And we believe that the attention of the masses has been drawn to the matter and the result to follow must be good and beneficial. From what we have seen here we are more firmly convinced than ever that the future prosperity and happiness of this country depend on the success and growth of an independent party. More firmly than ever we are convinced that an independent political movement by the millions of the country is the only hope of the people.

"Submitting to the candid judgment of the people our course in this general assembly, and in view of the facts as above stated, we will to-morrow cast our votes for John M. Palmer and bring this prolonged contest to a close."

JAMES COCKRELL.
"H. H. MOORE."

The three Farmers' Mutual Benefit association men called on Gen. Palmer and gave them their views as to what he would advocate in case of his election. These are embraced in free coinage, government regulation of transportation, reduction of the tariff and greenbacks as the currency. They had a long chat, in which Gen. Palmer and Cockrell and Moore were apparently agreed upon all points at issue before it was determined to issue the address announcing that two of the "big three" would vote for Palmer.

GOV. BOYD'S ANSWER.

He Claims That His Father Perfected His Citizenship in 1854.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 11.—The answer of Gov. Boyd to ex-Gov. Thayer's quo warranto proceedings has been filed in the supreme court. Gov. Boyd relies chiefly upon the fact that his father took out papers and held office, perfecting his citizenship in 1854. By taking out final papers under the new registration law, which went into effect last year, his father was required to produce his papers and, having mislaid them, took out another set. He also shows that in 1864 he enlisted as a volunteer in the United States service during the Indian outbreak in Buffalo county, Neb. He also sets up the fact that if Mr. Thayer had any doubt of the election of his successor he should have qualified anew and given a new bond. The United States court on December 10 last advised Boyd that he was eligible, and this opinion is put in as evidence.

Gov. Boyd also relies upon having been a member of the legislature and of the constitutional convention. Ex-Gov. Thayer's counsel having put in a demurrer at that time is insufficient. The supreme court has set Thursday for argument.

MINISTER SWIFT IS DEAD.

The United States Representative in Japan Dies at Tokio.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Secretary Blaine on Tuesday night received a cable message from Tokio, Japan, announcing the death of United States Minister John F. Swift.

(John F. Swift, of California, was a learned and able man, of bright wit and conversational powers, and a successful author. He had traveled nearly all over the world and possessed a fund of information of places and people. His social and literary qualities made him a company sought by all who knew him. He had been a member of the best story-tellers and after-dinner speakers in the country. He was well versed in oriental languages and had been one of the negotiators of the treaty with China in 1880 known as the Tresscott treaty. He was the republican candidate for governor of California in 1886, and wrote the famous anti-Chinese petition which was presented to the senate two or three years ago. He was a native of Missouri, but went to California in early days. He was an old friend of the president.)

THE WATERS RECEDE.

All Danger from the Swollen Rivers in the South Thought to Be Over.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 11.—The city was in darkness last night, the high water having interfered with the electric light and gas companies. No mail was delivered Tuesday and business was practically suspended. The river reached 25 feet 6 inches above flood stage and has been gradually receding all day.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 11.—The Cumberland river fell slowly all day, and at dark the gauge showed 47.7 feet. The submerged lumber yards here are all protected by booms and little further damage is expected, as they can stand a rise of several feet more. From all low-lying portions of the city the cry of distress is heard, and the streets are filled with wagons loaded with the effects of those who are able to move. Fully one hundred houses have been vacated on account of the rising waters.

SHOT HIS SWEETHEART.

Edward Rogers, of Saginaw, Kills Hattie Moses and Attempts Suicide.

SAGINAW, Mich., March 11.—A shocking murder and suicide occurred here at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. Edward Rogers had been for some time intimate with Hattie Moses, and Tuesday morning she swore out a warrant for breach of promise. Rogers heard of it and went to her house partly intoxicated and a quarrel ensued. Suddenly Rogers drew a revolver, pressed it against her heart and fired. She fell and died instantly. Rogers ran out, but noticed a man watching the house and immediately returned and shot himself in the left breast, falling across the body of the woman. Rogers' wound is pronounced fatal.

HAVE BIG DEBTS.

Dudley Hall & Co., Tea Importers of Boston, Fail. The Firm Was One of the Largest in the United States—Its Liabilities Estimated at $400,000.

BOSTON, March 11.—Dudley Hall & Co. have assigned. The firm has for many years carried on an extensive tea importing business. The liabilities of the firm itself are rising $400,000. The firm's assets consist largely of equities in real estate, which have been conveyed by the senior member as collateral security for the firm's debts. The firm was the second largest tea house in the United States, doing a business of $1,000,000 a year.

Suffering in Ireland.

LONDON, March 11.—The Irish local government board reports that the potato crop has failed in nearly half of Ireland, but that other crops equal the average. Potatoes have not been so scarce in thirty years, and it is feared the pressure for relief will soon become more general. The situation is aggravated by the refusal of tradesmen to grant the usual credits to farmers in the stricken districts.

She Weathered the Gale.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—A dispatch from Seattle says that the steamer Buckeye, which was reported to have been wrecked with twenty passengers during a gale on the sound Monday, arrived safely at her wharf Monday night.

Advance in the Price of Alcohol.

PEORIA, Ill., March 11.—The Western Distillers and Cattle-Feeders' association has advanced the price of alcohol two cents and that of spirits on a cent a gallon.

FREEZING IN BRITAIN

Terrific Snow Storms Sweep England.

THE WORST BLIZZARD FOR YEARS.

LONDON, March 11.—Snow has been falling in London the whole night and the storm has taken a fresh start, but in a milder form, in the north of England and in Scotland. In the southwest of England a gale has been blowing intermittently during the last twenty-four hours. Business at Bristol is suspended. Trains are snowed up in all directions. The duke of Edinburgh, who was going to Davenport to resume his naval duties, was unable to travel beyond Taunton. All the continental mail boats were several hours late. A Norwegian boat took fire in the channel while trying to give signals of distress and was destroyed. There are 2,200 colliers in the Rhonda idle in consequence of the storm.

The railroads of Kent and Sussex are completely blocked; the neighboring country is deep with snow. The hurricane which accompanied the snowstorm piled snow drifts on all sides, stopping all traffic upon the railway lines and making the country roads impassable. Full of passengers in the Midlands were snowed up Monday night, and the passengers were not rescued until morning. The rescued people suffered terribly from cold during the night, owing to the unheated condition of the cars. A train on the North Kent railroad, bound for the city, was snowed up Monday night and still remains in the railroad cutting, where it was stopped by a drift. A number of engines have been sent to the scene, but they have been unable, as yet, to move the blocked train from the cutting. The Sheerness mail car cannot be found. It has been lost somewhere along the line of railroad between this city and Sheerness. A search party sent out after the missing car rescued the engineer of the lost engine. He was found half frozen in a snow drift. Two clergymen were snowed up in a carriage on the Faversham road Monday night and were rescued with difficulty after having suffered terribly.

Reports from the provinces show that the blizzard prevailed from St. George's channel to the North sea. One of the effects of the severe storm has been the stoppage of the South Wales iron works. All road traffic is stopped and the trains there are delayed. In Somersetshire, Dorsetshire, Hampshire and Gloucestershire, there are snow drifts everywhere many feet deep, rendering field work impossible. In these counties the mail service has been completely stopped, and the farmers suffer immense loss among the cattle and sheep flocks with which their farms are stocked.

Taken altogether, the storm has not been equalled in severity for a decade, not excepting the terrible weather experienced during the latter part of 1890. Another instance of a snow-blocked train is upon a road familiar to Americans who cross the channel from the continent. The train which left the Charing Cross station at midnight for Folkestone with each other. At Folkestone the train was stopped. The passengers were not rescued until 8 o'clock when many of them were half frozen.

In addition to the damage done by the storm itself the Thames has commenced to rise in a dangerous manner, and already inundates the low lying districts bordering on that river from Richmond down. The green grocers of this city and elsewhere are naturally suffering from a dearth of vegetables, etc. All the wagons coming from the country and sound in the morning, have been snowed up along the roads leading into the metropolis, and a scarceness and rise in price of such provisions may be looked for during the next day or so.

The towns in the Channel islands have been cut off by the snow from all communication with each other. At Lydd, a small seaport town of Kent, while the coast-guard lifeboat was going to the rescue of the crew of an endangered vessel, the lifeboat capsized and several of its gallant occupants were drowned. Near Hastings five fishing smacks have been wrecked. Three fishermen were drowned.

A dispatch from Harwich brings the information that the yacht Sapphire, owned by Mr. MacLair, of Glasgow, has been driven ashore there during the gale. Mr. MacLair, the dispatch adds, was washed overboard and drowned.

Added to the list of lives already known to have been lost is that of a man who was found frozen to death near Dorking, in Surrey.

LONDON, March 11.—Information has reached Harlow that the town of Taganrog, on the Sea of Azov, has been completely buried in snow for three weeks. Ten thousand workmen were immediately dispatched to the scene by the government with orders to work day and night opening the roads and a large relief party has been organized to carry food to the starving people.

Destructive Blaze at Peoria, Ill.

PEORIA, March 11.—The large six-story brick building used as a warehouse for the grape sugar refinery was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday night. The fire originated in the engine room and spread with fearful rapidity, one of the employees of the company being so badly burned he will probably die. The building was erected two years ago at a cost of $55,000, and the finished product—the warehouse being full from top to bottom—was probably worth as much more.

Slack Man and His Son Burned.

ELKSVILLE, Wis., March 11.—Thomas Ecker, and his 3-year-old boy were burned to death Tuesday morning. The house caught fire in the absence of his wife, and Ecker, who was very ill, was unable to move.

WHAT TARIFA HAS DONE.

To-day in the markets of this country the commodities that enter into the daily life of the people, without a single exception are cheaper than they were on the first of September, 1899, and cheaper than they have ever been before in the history of the country. At the same time the agricultural products bring better prices than they did at the close of the fifteenth congress.—From speech of Congressman Grosvenor September 26.

RUSK AND VILAS.

"Vilas and Rusk for vice president in 1892" is the forecast made by the Oshkosh Northwestern. There is much to support the Northwestern's prophecy. The surprising political revolution in Wisconsin last fall was regarded by Mr. Vilas as at least a partial redemption of his assurance to his chief in 1888 and as a vindication of his own political sagacity then and since. As a notice to the country at large that this democratic victory in Wisconsin was a Vilas victory, the conspicuous figure in the state convention, the framer of the platform, the leading orator of the campaign, the only Vilas elected to the United States senate. The political jubilation was made to revolve about the figure of the gentleman from Madison. Governor Peck had been almost a nonentity in the campaign, and has been hardly more conspicuous since his inauguration. There was but one headlight to the great democratic locomotive, and that headlight was the Hon. William F. Vilas.

The situation is therefore: A strong republican state swinging over the democratic column—a state having twelve votes in the next electoral college. Every effort has been made to make it appear that one man was responsible for that political revolution, and that he was conspicuously rewarded by his party by an election to the highest office within the gift of that party. To preserve this democratic supremacy in 1892 will be the great desideratum, not only from a state, but from a national point of view, and the placing of a Wisconsin man on the next national ticket will be urged as a political necessity.

This same "political expediency" will urge the placing of a representative Wisconsin man on the next republican national ticket and the arguments which are advanced in favor of the nomination of Senator Vilas for vice president would apply with double force to the necessity of nominating Secretary Rusk. Secretary Rusk's success in his administration of the agricultural department has popularized him and strengthened him and has called to his support the agricultural element upon which the results of the next national contest will hinge.

Two national candidates from the Badger state is an unusual prospect. It is, however, by no means unreasonable in view of recent political changes and there will be many Wisconsin politicians with an eye to windward during the next two years.

It is related that an American traveler in the Dutch kingdom recently, in pursuance of his usual practice, handed the waiter at the hotel table a quarter and was at once arrested and fined $3. The judge said that tipping was a species of bribery designed to give the party undue advantage over other travelers. It is probable that in that antiquated land they do not even allow railroads to give officials and legislators passes.

Physicians in various parts of the state declare that the gripe has returned, and is not generally an epidemic. It is not so general as last year, but is more severe and obstinate. It is doubted by some that it has ever entirely disappeared from any locality it visited. Those who keep the system in good tone and avoid concern about the matter are the most rational.

A young man at Ann Arbor, who was given some note in 1888 from the fact that his uncle kindly died and left him $500,000 on condition that he should marry within five years, has just taken his wife, although he had two more years of freedom. But it is understood that life was made a burden by the bushels of proposals from the east.

That is a good scheme of Secretary Proctor, to enlist all the promising young Indians in the army. They can be trained into good enough material. The Indian police have been found efficient and reliable.

A mixture of beer and champagne is called Bismark in Germany. The Chicago Evening Post man has tried it and says that it is more like "drunk and disorderly."

Dr. B. B. HARTMAN, Pres't.

Caddy Drove Off.

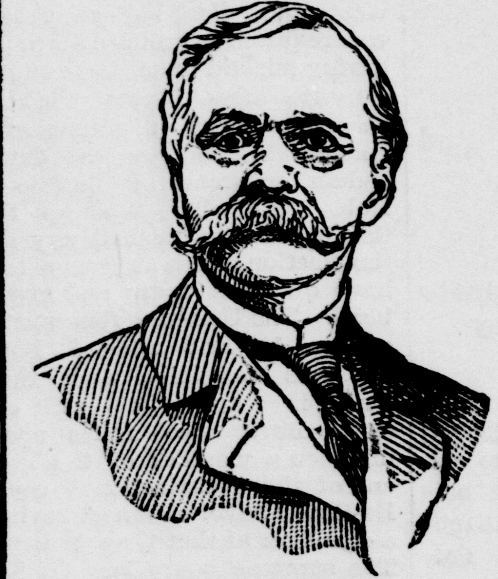

A clergyman in London was one night driven home, and paid the cabman what he supposed to be two shillings. He had taken the cabs from his waistcoat pocket, but as soon as they had passed from his hands he noticed their peculiar glitter, and said: "Stop, cabman! I've given you two sovereigns by mistake."

"Then your honor's seen the last of them," said the cabman, whipping his horse and driving briskly away.

Then the gentleman felt again in his pocket, and found that he had given the man two bright new farthings, which he had that day received and was keeping for his children.—London Letter.

General and Diplomat.

Daniel E. Sickles was born in the city of New York in 1822. He studied law, and was elected to congress by the Democrats in 1856. He killed Philip Barton Key in 1859. In 1860 he was returned to congress. When the war broke out he entered the Federal service. July 2, 1863, he lost a leg at Gettysburg. He was made commander of the Second military district, comprising North and South Carolina, but was removed in 1867. He was appointed minister to Spain in 1869, and held the post till 1873. Then he returned to New York, where he is in business. In 1899 he was appointed sheriff of New York county.

GEN. DANIEL E. SICKLES.

ILLINOIS.

Business Transacted in Both Branches of the Legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 11.—In the senate Senator Bacon presented a petition from Danville ladies for the passage of the amendment to the constitution allowing women to vote at school elections. Senator Hunt introduced an election bill. The bill is a combination of the Australian law and the Michigan law, with objectionable features of both bills eliminated. The following bills were passed: Allowing 7 per cent. interest on judgments and decrees if not redeemed in one year; transferring the delinquent land tax fund to a general revenue fund; providing that the school fund of managing schools under the special charter shall not be governed by the general school law.

In the house the senate 5 and 7 per cent. interest bill, the act, and other interest bills, to the committee on finance. Among other bills introduced were the following: To provide for the steam heating of all railway passenger cars; to provide for the employment of convicts on the public roads; to provide for the establishment of public hospitals in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants; making appropriation for a training-school building in connection with the Normal university at Normal. The elections committee's bill providing for the election of the railroad and warehouse commissioners by a direct vote of the people was taken up and read a third time. It was about to be placed upon its passage when the hour for going into joint session arrived and the bill went over. After the joint session the house adjourned.

MICHIGAN.

Measures Acted Upon by the Legislature.

LANSING, Mich., March 11.—The house on Tuesday passed the bill authorizing Detroit to raise $50,000 to entertain the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic next August. A bill asking $100,000 additional from the state for the same purpose will be discussed March 19. The house passed the senate joint resolution submitting the question of increasing the salary of the attorney-general from $800 to $2,500. It will be submitted at the coming spring election. Bills were reported favorably for the free employment of convicts at different points under state supervision; making general election days legal holidays; and for uniformity of text books. A joint resolution amending the constitution to limit the time for introduction of bills to the first thirty days of the session was killed. Commencing March 17 the senate will hold sessions both morning and afternoon. The senate and house committees have agreed on the university appropriation bill and favorably reported it. The total amount asked for by the regents was $101,325 for 1891, and $98,700 for 1892. The committees have, however, made a total reduction of about $17,000.

OTTUMWA, Ill., March 11.—A cablegram received from United States Consul Simons, at Hong Kong, China, stated that Senator P. G. Ballinger, died at sea on the 7th, after a brief illness. Ballinger was one of the best known hotel men in the world. Ottumwa is in deep mourning.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be inactive, you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and tonic; acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils, and gives a good complexion. Sold at F. Sherer & Co's drug store; 50 cents per bottle.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, leading bass of the O. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

A VEXED QUESTION.

Further Correspondence Regarding the Behring Sea Trouble.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Behring sea negotiations have taken a most favorable turn and the governments of the United States and Great Britain appear to have at length reached a basis upon which to settle their difficulties. As is evidenced by the following communication from Lord Salisbury to Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister here, which was laid before Secretary Blaine and was made public by him Tuesday night:

London, Feb. 11, 1903.—To Sir Julian Pauncefote, Bart. The dispatch of Mr. Blaine, under date of the 17th of December, has been carefully considered by my majesty's government. The chief of the dispatch which has been carried on between the two governments has been materially to narrow the area of controversy. It is now quite clear that the interests of the two governments are not in conflict. The interests of the two governments are not in conflict. The interests of the two governments are not in conflict.

"The claim of the United States to prevent the exercise of the seal fishery by other nations in Behring sea rests now exclusively upon the interest which the purchase of the Bering Sea by the United States in 1867, and the Russian government at the time of the purchase, possessed an inherent right to enforce such a prohibition or acquire by the act of fishing and to the fact that the open sea beyond the territorial limit of miles, which they would not otherwise have possessed. But it is said that this proposition, worthless in itself, acquired validity and force against the British government because that government can be shown to have accepted its provisions."

"I am not concerned to dispute the contention that an invalid claim may, as against another government, acquire a validity which in its inception it did not possess. But in question of decision is whether the government of Great Britain has accepted the claim put forward in this case. Our contention is that not only can it be shown that the government of Great Britain at any time since 1821 has admitted the soundness of the propositions put forward by the United States, but it can be shown that it has categorically denied it on more than one occasion."

"I understand Mr. Blaine's argument to be that Great Britain has intended to protest against the claim of Russia to exclude ships for 100 miles from her coasts in Behring sea who would have taken this opportunity of doing so, but that in continuing her implication, renounced any claim that could arise out of the same set of circumstances in regard to any sea that was not part of the Pacific ocean. And then Mr. Blaine goes on to contend that the phrase 'Pacific ocean' did not and does not include Behring sea."

Lord Salisbury then deals at great length with the latter claim, and, after quoting many authorities to show that the Behring sea is and always has been regarded as an integral part of the Pacific ocean, he continues: "In regard to the questions as they are proposed by Mr. Blaine, I should say that as to the first, and no objection will be offered by her majesty's government. They are as follows:—

"1. What exclusive jurisdiction in the sea known as Behring sea and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein did Russia assert land exert prior to and up to the time of the conclusion of the Convention of 1825 between Great Britain and the United States?—

"2. How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain?—

"3. Was the body of water now known as Behring sea included in the phrase 'Pacific ocean' as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights in the Behring sea were given or conceded to Great Britain by the said treaty?—

"Her majesty's government would have no objection to referring to arbitration the first part of that question if it should be thought desirable to do so, but they do not admit that the decision of it can conclude the larger question the arbitrator would have to determine. To the latter part of No. 3 it would be their duty to take exception."

"What rights, if any, in the Behring sea were given or conceded to Great Britain by the said treaty? Great Britain has never suggested that any rights were given to her or conceded to her by the said treaty. All that was done was done to recognize the natural right of free navigation and fishing in that as all other parts of the Pacific ocean. Russia did not give these rights to Great Britain, because they were never hers to give away."

"Does not all the rights of Russia as to jurisdiction and as to the seal fisheries in Behring sea, east of the water boundary, in the treaty between the United States and Russia of March 20, 1825, rest upon the fact that the United States under that treaty?—

"The fourth question is hardly worth referring to an arbitrator, as Great Britain would be prepared to accept it without dispute."

"The first clause of the fifth proposition, 'What are now the rights of the United States to our fur seal fisheries in the waters of the Behring sea outside of the ordinary territorial limits?' is a question which would be very properly referred to the decision of an arbitrator. But the subsequent clause, which assumes that such rights could have grown out of the ownership of the breeding islands and the habits of the seals in resorting thereto, involves an assumption as to the prescriptions of international law at the present time to which her majesty's government is not prepared to accede."

"The sixth question (relating to the establishment of a closed period in seal fishing), which I have no doubt the government of the United States is seeking by means of arbitration an adjustment of the international questions which have so long formed a matter of controversy between the two governments."

BIG BLAZE AT BUFFALO.

Several Buildings Destroyed and Six Men Burned to Death—Loss, $235,000.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 11.—About 130 Tuesday afternoon flames were discovered bursting from Henry W. Burt's five-story brick and iron building at the corner of Court and Pearl streets. The building was occupied on the first floor by C. V. Forness & Co., wholesale dealers in wooden and trimmings. Schaefer & Wolf, shoe manufacturers, occupied the upper floors. No sooner had the fire reached the roof of the Burt building than it flashed across Pearl street to the Dental manufacturing company's building on the northeast corner of Pearl street. The fire made quick work of penetrating to the very heart of the Dental company's building. At 1:50 the side wall of the Burt building on the Pearl street side fell into the street, a mass of brick and twisted iron. Five minutes later the corner of the building fell into Court street. Six horses in a barn in the rear of the Dental company's building were burned to death. The Dental company had considerable stock in the barn, which was all destroyed. The Burt building was completely ruined. The Tucker building was somewhat damaged by fire and water in the upper stories. The old building on Pearl street occupied by Sumner, Weinberger & Co. was gutted. The total loss is $284,000; insurance, $191,700.

WILL PLAY IN CINCINNATI.

Association Baseball Men Not Alarmed by the League's Bargain with Johnson.

CINCINNATI, March 11.—The special committee of the association appointed to inquire about the transfer of the Cincinnati club to the league reported Tuesday. They question the validity of the transfer, recommend that its validity be tested in the courts, and that steps be at once taken to establish an association club in Cincinnati. When asked, after the secret session, what was to be the future of the association in Cincinnati, each delegate said that their plans had not been interfered with in the least. The circuit announced by the association—Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington, in the east; St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati and Columbus in the west—with the array of playing talent now under contract, gives promise of a most prosperous season and certainly presents to the public a dangerous rival for the thirty minutes Tuesday the sum of $3,000 was subscribed to the fund to be used for the protection of the American association interests.

TO SUCCEED HEARST.

The Election of a United States Senator Meeting the Attention of California Lawmakers.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 11.—Tuesday the senate and assembly balloted for a United States senator to succeed the late George Hearst. The democratic members took no part except to cast complimentary votes for the favorite leaders of their party. The balloting gave but little indication of how matters stand, as everything was preliminary. To-day the real contest will begin, when the senate and assembly will hold a joint session. The fight will be between three men, Mr. Foster, Mr. DeYoung and Charles Fulton. Their vote Tuesday was nearly equal and no prediction can be made as to how the vote will go to-day.

Western Lumbermen to Combine.

OMAHA, Neb., March 11.—The annual meeting of the Nebraska State Lumbermen's association, representing 400 yards in the state, began Tuesday. Delegations from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver and St. Paul were present, representing the United Lumber association, which includes all big lumber dealers of the west, to submit a proposition to consolidate the two associations. It was agreed to decide and a consolidation convention was held in Chicago May 10. It was decided to institute a vigorous boycott against all wholesalers of the east and west who are selling to the retail trade.

Cold-Water Candidates.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 11.—The state prohibition convention met Tuesday and nominated a ticket headed by Rev. J. H. Larry for governor. The resolutions declared that the present tariff is improperly called "protection to American labor." They commend the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and call for more thorough enforcement of all laws that protect the weak against the strong.

NEAR DEATH IN A BOAT

F. J. Bailey's Night in a Florida Storm.

'T WAS A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Night When All Hopes of Safety Centered on a Length of New Hope—Janesville Man's Experience in a Tremendous Storm on the Gulf of Mexico.

Fred J. Bailey, who is now sojourning in Florida had a narrow escape from a watery grave while on a hunting and fishing trip. The details of the narrow escape as written by himself will prove interesting.

"It was on this Thursday afternoon that we nearly lost our lives, while sailing in a small sloop. We had passed the Ochsens and De Costa islands and had yet to cross a body of water over twenty miles wide and protected from the gulf only by a narrow strip of timber. We debated some time before striking out across, but our skipper was the most reliable fellow on these waters and he said there was no danger as long as the wind held where it was. He only feared a 'norther.' We reefed both jib and mainsail and let the peak down before starting so as to have as light sail as possible.

"This precaution was all that saved our lives.

"We had not gone five miles on this open bay before there came a lull, lasting about five minutes. Then the wind changed to the north and came down upon us in a perfect fury. There was only three things to be done. We could keep right on with the boat headed as near the wind as possible or else turn and run before it—with a surety of wrecking the vessel and probably losing our lives. The third was to cast out both anchors and trust that the cables would hold us. We had twenty miles of clear water before us and we decided to keep the boat headed to the wind. The waves kept piling higher and higher; ten, then twelve and then fifteen feet high, sweeping the sloop, which was only built for inland water, from stern to stern.

"The first mighty wave that came in swept the deck clear of everything movable. Nets, poles, cans, ropes, etc., my rod and reel and everything loose disappeared from view. We were soaked to the skin. At every dash the seas broke over us, and to add to the horror of the situation, three of our party became violently seasick.

"After running as far as possible under that took we were confronted with a new difficulty. Directly ahead and only a mile distant we could see the waves breaking over an oyster bar.

"Now something must be done. To run upon the bar was sure death; and to make things worse we had only thirty minutes more of daylight. We were driving along at a race horse speed, and as sailing in the sea after dark meant sure destruction; we decided to try the anchors. I tell you, I now fully realize why the anchor is used as an emblem of hope. Our only hope was in the anchor. We threw them overboard and they both held with the boat's head square to the wind. The rope was new, but such plunging I never want to see again. It seemed as if the little vessel must be pulled to pieces, but she rode the waves until 12 o'clock the next day, and saved us.

"The wind slackened next day and although dead ahead we tacked until dark Friday and then anchored for the night nine miles from home. We arrived at the hotel at noon Saturday.

"The papers all said that it was the worst storm in eleven years. I tell you, not three minutes a day pass without my saying or thinking 'God bless those anchors.'"

JANESVILLE IS OUT.

This City Not in the State Base Ball League.

Janesville was dropped from the state base ball league at the meeting in Appleton yesterday afternoon. Delegates were present from Oshkosh, Marinette, Fond du Lac, Oconto and Green Bay. The secretary, formerly held by Harry T. Smith, was offered to M. P. Addis, of Milwaukee, whose acceptance has not yet been received. No delegates were present from Racine or Janesville. These cities were telegraphed and requested they would not be in the league. This makes the league at present consist of Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Marinette, Oconto, Green Bay, Stevens Point, Sheboygan and South Milwaukee want to come in and probably will be admitted later. Appleton, Oshkosh, Oconto and Marinette each put up $125, being one-half the guarantee and initiation fees. The other clubs are to do likewise within three days. A schedule of forty-two games for each club at home and abroad is being arranged to commence probably about May 15.

His Intentions Were Good.

Water—What'll ye have?

Guest—Baked bluefish.

Water—Hain't got any cod, then.

Guest—Let me have some cod, then.

Water—Hain't got any fish at all.

Guest (with a sigh)—Well, then, give me some corn beef and cabbage; the Lord knows I asked for fish.—Buffalo Commercial.

Bread! Bread! The Cry for Bread!

A million loaves, not enough for one city! Five millions, not enough for one state! Fifty millions, not enough for this country a single day, yet often what some, soggy stuff is, is, nevertheless it is eaten, and the result is dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, impoverished blood, pimples, blotches and scurfals. For the correction of all this, and as a general tonic for the system, take Golden Medical discovery prepared by Dr. Price, of Buffalo. Its action is like a charm, a "benediction that follows after prayer." A remedy for stomachic and liver troubles, as well as a specific for throat and lung disorders. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure, or money refunded.

"What you coughing up my friend?"

"Of course! My cold is no better!" "Well, don't stand on the order of going, but go to the drugist and get a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, quick." He went, and he was straightway made happy.

For burs, colds, and other wounds Salvation Oil has proved itself to be the best remedy ever used. All druggists sell it for 25 cents a bottle.

H. S. Woodruff's New Catalogue Now Ready for Distribution.

H. S. Woodruff, proprietor of the celebrated Buckleton Farm, this city has just issued a neatly printed forty-page catalogue from The Gazette press detailing the pedigrees of the fine bred, trotting animals now to be seen at this farm. Forest Bassett, a full brother of the celebrated pacer Johnathon (2.06 1/4) stands at the head of the list, followed by a lot of fine animals as can be found on any stock breeding farm in this section of country. Mr. Woodruff has had many years of practical experience in raising this class of horses, and Buckleton Stock Farm never had finer or handsomer animals than can now be seen there.

MUCH MILK SPILLED.

Runaway Horses Wreck a Champion Dairy Wagon on Bluff Street.

A team of horses attached to a Champion dairy wagon ran away this morning scattering milk cans along the street and smothering the sleigh. The driver was delivering milk at Dr. J. F. Pembler's residence when the team started. They came up Jackson street on a lively run throwing a can of milk out near Skelly's grocery. Another can flew out as they turned at Bluff street and shortly after the horses tried to divide up and go on both sides of a shade tree. The experiment did not work but wrecked the pole and harness. The horses were caught before they could free themselves from the wreck.

Then And Now.

When first I saw him, dashed with pride, He stood upon the stage

Like common balls of speech around it's eloquence it tumbled.

When last I saw him, there he was, At six or so a week,

Two days yet remain in which to purchase seats and all who expect to go should select them before it is too late.

Funeral of Mrs. Carman.

President W. O. Whitford, of Milton College, officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Carman at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, the services being held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Huntress, 360 West street, there being a large number of friends in attendance. The remains were taken by carriage to Milton and laid by the side of her husband in the village cemetery.

Not many reach the allotted three score years and ten, but it was not until four score years had passed that Mrs. Carman's hands were folded and her eyes were closed in smiling rest. Mary Davidson Carman was born in Middlesex, Middlesex county, New Jersey, August 16, 1809. At the early age of seventeen she obeyed her Creator's call and joined herself with the Presbyterian church of her native city, and has ever been a loyal follower of the faith she then publicly confessed. She married in 1827, and in an early day came west with her husband and family, settling near Milton. Her husband preceded her to the other home many years ago, and of her eight children—three sons and five daughters—two daughters also wait her on the brighter shore. To her surviving children she has left the most precious legacy, the memory of an ever wise, faithful and loving mother, whose eighty-two years is an enviable record of peace, cheer and good will to all. Her later years she has passed with her children, coming to one and another like an angel of love. The last two years she has spent in this city with her daughter, Mrs. Huntress. She had enjoyed the best of health the past year and was ill but a week, having taken a slight cold which she seemed unable to rally. She passed peacefully away in the early morn of March 9, 1891.

Her children, J. W. and W. E. Carman

of Chicago, W. W. Carman, of Evansville, Mrs. G. J. Patterson, of Fort Atkinson, Mrs. J. J. James, of Marion, Iowa, and Mrs. J. H. Huntress were with her at the last.

Outgrown.

Nay, you wrong her, my friend, her love she has simply outgrown.

One can read the whole matter translating her heart by the light of one's own.

Two summers ago when you wooed her you stood on the self same plane.

Face to face, heart to heart, never dreaming your souls could be parted again.

She loved you at that time entirely in the bloom of her youth.

And is not her faith, I repeat it, that she does not love you today.

Nature never stands still, nor souls either; they are ever growing.

And hers has been steadily soaring, but how has it been with your own?

She has struggled and yearned and aspired; grown purer and wiser each year.

There are now further above you in luminous atmosphere.

For she whom you crowned with fresh roses, has learned that the first of our duties to God and ourselves is to grow.

Her eyes now are sweeter and calmer, but their vision is clearer as well.

There is now further cadence, but is pure as a silver bell.

Have you, too, grown purer and wiser as the months and the years have rolled on?

Did you meet her this morning rejoicing in the triumphs of victory won?

Nay, hear me—the truth cannot harm you, when told in her presence you stood, Was the hand that you gave her as white and clear as the hand of the woman whom you loved?

Go measure yourself by her standard, look back on the years that have fled, and you will find, when you tell her that the love of her girlhood is dead.
